ROHL Debuts New Space at LuxeHome

Created: August 28, 2012

Chicago, IL – LuxeHome, the world’s largest collection of premier boutiques for home building and renovation, is pleased to announce that ROHL is bringing its collection of authentically crafted luxury faucets, sinks and fixtures to the Design Resource Center in September of 2012. The Design Resource Center, located on the first floor of The Merchandise Mart in Suite 163, is home to 6,000 square feet of luxury kitchen and bath products from seven top brands, including ROHL.

Founded in 1983 and anchored in a tradition of authenticity, value and innovation, ROHL sources beautifully crafted kitchen and bath fixtures from some of the most innovative workshops in Western Europe and North America. Attributed with bringing the original Pull-Out Faucet to America, Ken Rohl set a course for his company founded on the idea of finding uniquely designed, genuinely made products not yet discovered in America. Today, sons Lou, Mark and Greg are continuing the company mission of offering innovative products with a very special provenance while also expanding the business worldwide with offices in New York, California and Milan.

The ROHL LuxeHome Decorative Plumbing Showroom features a full range of traditional, transitional and modern designs for the kitchen and bath. In addition to a beautiful array of products, the showroom will host a variety of lunch and learns, CEU and CES programs, as well as offer personal guidance and technical assistance by appointment. Customers will be referred to respected Chicagoland ROHL Authorized Showrooms for ordering and delivery.
